1873.

This rare collection is the result of the labors and scientific researches of the late Charles Hufnagle, M. D., United States Consul General of British India, residing at Calcutta. The possession of curiosities, from the literary, scientific and world of arts, was to him a life's devotion, and his sole desire. An eminent traveler, he spared neither expense, trouble nor hardships for the purpose of obtaining curiosities of every description from foreign climes, and the collection he has amassed will bear ample testimony to the success he so richly merited.
